

WASHINGTON COUNTY SCHOOL DISTRICT - SPECIAL ELECTION BOND INFORMATION

Argument in Favor of Bond

Washington County School District is asking voters to approve a tax rate-neutral bond this November.

What does tax rate-neutral mean? It means that the school District is asking taxpayers to freeze the tax rate for up to five years so additional funds will be available for new school buildings, maintenance and provide safety measures for every school building in the district. This bond will help Washington County School District bridge the funding gap as our community and student population continues to grow at such a rapid pace.

The District will bond for only enough money to go towards needed expenditures which will keep the tax rate flat or potentially lower it. Educating children is a joint partnership with our taxpayers. Smaller bonds like the one proposed provide the tools, facilities and in the end, skills to effectively prepare students for future careers and higher education.

We are working hard to provide a safe, high quality education for the children in Washington County. Financial transparency is important to us. As always, we invite you to contact us with your questions.
